Mothers March On Polio Schedule For Thursday Night January 29th

Observations... By UDELL

With the passing of Joseph O. Mauffray, one of Hancock County's outstanding men, Bay St. Louis has lost a good citizen. A Christian gentleman, devoted to his family, Mr. Mauffray was loved, admired and respected by his fellowmen. No citizen has stood for more than Joseph O. Mauffray. He was an influential factor in any movement that meant progress for the County and City and he was called upon to fill positions of honor and trust. His record was truly outstanding. To his faithful wife who was always at his side during his moments of joy and sorrow, and his family, we wish to extend our heartfelt sympathies.

There's quite a hole at the corner of Union and the Beach. Can't the City officials see that it is repaired before it gets any bigger?

Be sure and turn on your porch light Thursday, January 29, between the hour of 7:00 and 8:00 p. m. to let the mothers know that you want to contribute to the March of Dimes. The Mothers March will take place Thursday. Regardless of the size of your contribution, every little bit helps in the fight against this crippling enemy of children and adults alike.

The Noto home was decorated with gold and white flowers; the lace covered table was centered with a white and gold cake. Candela, on either side, held white tapers. Refreshments were served throughout the day.

Porch lights will be burning for an hour throughout Hancock County on the night of January 29 when the Mothers' March on Polio will be launched as the climax of the 1953 March of Dimes. It was announced Thursday by Mrs. S. P. Murphy, chairman of the March.

The burning lights in thousands of homes will be the signal to an army of volunteer mothers that they will be welcome to receive contributions to the March of Dimes.

The Hancock County March of Dimes committee has designated the hour between 7:00 p. m. and 8:00 p. m. as the time for this dramatic windup of the campaign against infantile paralysis, the chairman declared. The local Mothers' March on Polio, she continued, is part of an identical nation-wide movement in which hundreds of thousands of mothers will participate.

"Turn on your porch light to fight polio is the theme of this special appeal by the mothers of the nation on behalf of the men, women and children who have suffered from infantile paralysis," the chairman said. The lights of American homes, she continued, also will serve as a symbol of hope to those who may be stricken in the future.

"Here's the way the Mothers' March will work," she said. "Between the hours designated, every resident in the county will be asked to turn on his porch light or to turn a light in his front window—if he wishes to make a contribution to the March of Dimes."

"Then the mothers will march, street by street, block by block, house to house receiving contributions to this year's campaign against polio."

Mrs. Murphy declared that the recruitment of volunteers will continue throughout the week. Those wishing to enlist, she said, may do so by telephoning 129-R or 794. Each mother will be assigned a specific place in the march.

"While mothers of the county are responding with enthusiasm," said Mrs. Murphy, "we also are receiving support from another quarter—fathers, brothers, uncles and nephews. We certainly are not turning them away, because we know how deeply they feel about this war against polio. However, during the hour of the Mothers' March between 7:00 p. m. and 8:00 p. m., the mothers will have the star roles."

Coast Electric Directors attending the convention are Fred S. Ladner, Harrison County; George Curet, Hancock County; and Walter Stewart, Pearl River County.

They will return around February 1.

Over 4500 members of rural electric systems are expected to attend the 11th annual convention January 26-29.

The convention, meeting in the historic city of the Golden Gate, will hear such Congressional leaders as Senator William Knowland, Calif., member of the Senate. Appropriations Committee, and Rep. H. Carl Anderson, Minn., member of the House Appropriation Committee and Chairman of the Agricultural Subcommittee.

Other speakers include Dr. Theodore J. Krepes, professor of Economics, Stanford University, and Richard L. Neuberger, author and journalist and state senator from Oregon.

Among those invited to speak are President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay. Governor Earl Warren of California has been invited to open the meeting with an address of welcome. Claude R. Wickard, REA administrator, will speak during the second day of the convention.

NRECA committee members will arrive in advance of the convention and will spend two days preparing recommendations for the delegates to study. One important issue which will be discussed is the attitude of the new administration toward rural electrification and public power. On the first evening of the convention, Miss Rural Electrification of 1953 will be elected. State winners from six states will compete for the title this year.

Feature attraction of the evening's entertainment will be the popular radio comedy team, Fibber McGee and Molly, in a full hour show.

McComb Economist Studies Program Of Local REA

Mrs. Margaret Warren, home electro-economist for Magnolia Electric Power Association, McComb, Miss., was a recent visitor to the Coast Electric Power Association area.

Mrs. Warren came to observe the light conditioning programs that Coast Electric has been carrying on in this area. In this program, one room in a school in each of the three counties served by the Association, was chosen as a demonstration room to be light-conditioned.

In these rooms, the ceilings, walls, floors and desks were refinished and electric lights installed according to the lighting system developed by Dr. Daniel Harman of the State Department of Education in Texas.

Schools cooperating in the program were McNeil in Pearl River County; Leetown in Hancock County; and Woomarket in Harrison County. Mrs. Warren visited the McNeil and Leetown schools.

The Magnolia Electric Power Association has been requested by the Superintendents of Schools to conduct such a lighting program in their area.

DIMES INSURE LIFE WHITFIELD TELLS ROTARY

"When an adult puts a dime in an iron lung, he is insuring his own life," Kenneth Whitfield told members of the Rotary Club Wednesday.

The speaker told of cases where adults in the state were victims of polio and how those who survived the attack, receive the best care available—care which is possible only through March of Dimes contributions.

Mr. Whitfield, who personally saw how the March of Dimes helps those stricken by polio, gave a resume of what was done for his young son who was stricken with infantile paralysis last summer. He showed the members how the dimes they contributed over the years helped the children in Hancock County who are suffering from polio.

"Regardless of how much money you have," the club's vice-president continued, "you could not but the treatment, at any hospital in the country, given through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis."

He emphasized the fact that adults were subject to the disease as well as children, and that through their contributions to the annual drive, they were writing their own insurance.

In conclusion, he said that scientists, whose work has been financed by the National Foundation, are close to a vaccine that they hope will be a discovery in fighting polio. "Last year saw the biggest toll and biggest expenditure by the National Foundation," Mr. Whitfield added, "and the funds were exhausted. It is necessary to build up this fund in order to prepare for this year."

Money orders were at a higher level in but one city, Piquayune, where a 2 per cent increase was reported. There was one increase and four losses reported for postal receipts. The utilities showed virtually no change in most cities. All increases and decreases were well under one per cent.

Business activity changes for the comparison with November were: Bay St. Louis, an increase of 2 per cent; Piquayune, a 26 per cent gain; Biloxi, a 25 per cent loss; Gulfport, a 4 per cent increase and Pass Christian, 6 per cent of 10 per cent.

To Wesley, however, the braces, which he wore were a big step forward from the iron lung in which he spent many months. Already he is able to walk. A naturally plucky youngster, the doctors feel that Wesley has made remarkable progress.

Polio struck Wesley when he was starting his first year in school. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Joel Price, reside in Waveland. Wesley is one of Hancock County's four polio victims in 1951, and one in 1952, all of whom were aided by the March of Dimes.

This booklet was written to assist high school staffs in producing their school newspapers. Copies of it will be sent to every member of the staff of each paper at Bay St. Louis, Dedeaux Line, Kila and Sellers.

"Of course, the schools must write this department and tell how many copies they need," explained Dr. Gerald Forbes, chairman of the Department of Journalism. "Requests for additional copies already have exhausted the supply, and we are now producing more."

This is one of the services of the Press Institute, Mississippi high school editors association, which will meet on campus, March 20-21.

Plans are being made in cooperation with the University's Department of Conferences and Institutes for the best program in the history of the Institute, according to Dr. Forbes. Congressional Sidelights

AWAITING THE INAUGURATION

The hammers have stopped pounding on the inaugural stands at the Capitol, and the raw lumber of the platforms, topped by white painted railings, stretches out in vast emptiness across the Capitol Plaza. Any one who has

Mrs. Hamilton and daughter of Mobile, Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Leandro Villamil and grandson, Irvin E. Green Jr., spent Sunday in Biloxi.

Mrs. Viva A. Smith of Macon, Georgia, recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Colly of Atlanta, Ga., while enroute to Lakeshore to visit her mother Mrs. Elizabeth Courge.

Gulfview School closed Thursday at noon, due to the illness of 36 children out of an enrollment of 105.

Mrs. Andrew Ladner entertained her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ladner and son of Chalmette, La., Sunday.

Rev. Robert McNamee and family are settled now in their new home next to the Grocery in Clermont. A speedy recovery is wished for Rev. McNamee who has been ill this past week.

visited Washington in recent years will recall the large parking area to the west of the Capitol and can visualize the sight from my office window facing the Capitol. The whole paved section, except for a two-lane roadway, has been flooded, and row after row of backless plank benches over the "platforms." In the middle a sort of double-decker stand has been erected to accommodate the still, TV, and newsreel photographers. Even the fountains have been covered over to provide more of the much-in-demand seats, and the steps of the Capitol have been covered with lumber for standing room. In the center of the building, in the shadow of the Capitol dome, a columned and banistered grandstand rises. There first the new Vice President and then the President will take the oath of office.

The stands here are but a small part of the preparations for what will probably be the most elaborate inauguration in history. Pennsylvania Avenue has been lined with bleachers for the parade, and every seat in them has been sold long since at from $3 to $6. The Inaugural Festival, a vaudeville presentation directed by Hollywood actor and dancer, George Murphy, with tickets at from $3 to $12, is also sold out. Two auditoriums have been hired for the Inaugural Ball, and the tickets, $12 each or $75 for box seats for a couple, are gone.

This may appear somewhat frivolous but it is possibly significant as a manifestation of the interest with which the new administration, the first Republican one in 20 years, is anticipated.

THE APPOINTEES
The new President's appointees for his cabinet as well as his sub-cabinet appointments have met with general approval. This is possibly due to the fact that those selected are eminently qualified for the various jobs to be done. In addition, on the whole, they are men of high caliber and character. We personally are very much gratified at some of the selections; others are no doubt good men but would not have been of our choosing. We are particularly gratified that President Ike selected our old friend, Marion Folsom, as the Under Secretary of the Treasury. It may be recalled by some of our friends that Marion Folsom was the director of the staff of the Colmer Post War Economic Policy and Planning Committee. The success of that committee was largely attributed to the keen mind, broad vision and high character of this Georgia born industrialist transplanted to New York. If all of the new President's appointees measure up to the high standard of character and American citizenship of Marion Folsom, this country will be in safe hands for the next four years.

LEGISLATION
Legislatively speaking there will be practically no legislation passed by Congress for the next 60 days. Up until this time the Congress has been in brief sessions only. The committees are being organized. After the inaugural hearing, it will be continued requiring a considerable time before any legislation of importance will be brought to the floor of the Congress.

All House members from Mississippi maintain their same committee assignments as in the preceding 82nd Congress. In fact, the only change is that some of us have moved up in the seniority ranks due to the political defeat and deaths. Those assignments are: Abernathy, Agriculture; Whitten, Appropriations; Williams, Interstate and Foreign Commerce; Smith, Public Works; Winstead, Armed Services; and Colmer, Rules.

What Makes a Woman CHOOSE SUCH A LIFE?

You see her walking down the street... and you wonder about her. She isn't fashionably dressed like other women. She wears no lipstick, no make-up, no high heels or nylons. Instead of a "perky" hair, her head is covered by a hood and veil. Her dress is a billowing, full-length habit that bears little resemblance to feminine fashions.

And as she passes by, you realize that here is a woman different from others not only in dress, but in her entire way of life. Here is one who has deliberately turned her back upon the worldly pleasures which other women seek and enjoy. And perhaps you wonder why a woman should give up all this to become a Catholic nun.

Is it because she is afraid to face the world and its responsibilities? Is it because she lacks talents that other women possess and therefore seeks shelter in the convent? Is she devoid of maternal instinct? Or does she choose the life of a nun because she thinks it is easier and more secure than life in a world of fluctuating economic conditions?

No—a nun who will knock at your door asking for alms for the poor surely is not afraid of the world. A Catholic sister competent to teach in a school... and often highly gifted in the arts and languages... is surely not lacking in talents. Nor can anyone who has seen a Catholic nun mothering the sick in a hospital... or even in a leper colony... believe that she is lacking in the maternal instinct.

What is it, then, that prompts a woman to turn her back upon the pleasures and luxuries of the world for a life of poverty, chastity and obedience? How is it that hundreds of thousands of women do this... many of them coming from well-to-do families which could supply their every need and wish? What is the spark that fires their zeal for God, and for humanity?

The answer is, of course, that the heart of a nun is filled with the desire to serve God. And that desire is the product of her Catholic Faith. If you doubt the compelling power of Catholic belief, remember this fact... the Catholic Church is the only institution on earth having large numbers of such consecrated women who devote their lives to the work of Christ in schools, hospitals, orphanages and old peoples' homes, and among the poor and sick in every land.

Perhaps you would not or could not become a nun, or a priest, or a religious of the Catholic Church. Perhaps you would not even want to be a Catholic. But you should inform yourself concerning the teachings and beliefs of the Church which can inspire such magnificent sacrifice and service.

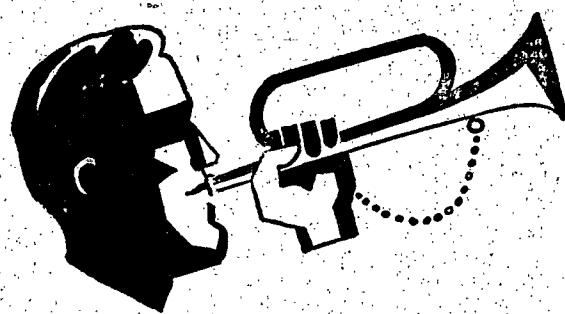

If you would like to know more about the Catholic faith... how they are trained, how they live, why they choose this way of life—write today for Free Pamphlet No. KC-25.

"REVEILLE" for Industry

Industry is being awakened to the advantages of locating factories and plants in Mississippi. The past decade has seen a great many companies from these traditionally industrial sections aroused to action by the aggressive programs of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board, civic groups, railroad and utility representatives and satisfied management of firms which pioneered the Southward trek of industry.

The oil and gas industry has been such a pioneer, and its activities in Mississippi have helped build a sound foundation for continued economic progress. Tax, wage, royalty and rental payments and purchases by this vital industry are pouring more than $50 million per year into the state's economic bloodstream.

Mississippi's oil and gas industry has taken the lead in developing and making available natural gas, the dependable, low-cost fuel not available to heavy industry in many sections, and thereby has given the Hospitality State another advantage in competition for new industries.

These industries, which today eye Mississippi as a possible site for their new plant, are mighty interested in "Hospitality." They are weary of persecution and unfair taxation at the hands of states that take industry's presence for granted. They are dog-tired of government-inspired labor strife. They are sick of playing "whipping boy" to disgruntled politicians and socialists.

Mississippi is known as a place where state government treats industry fairly, where friendly, willing labor is eager to join with capital and management in building a better life for all upon a sound economic foundation.

The prospective Mississippians among America's industries are listening to "Reveille" and are waking up to what the oil and gas industry discovered years ago when it began to grow with Mississippi and to help pioneer the economic progress which is so evident today.

And the states which thought they had a monopoly on industry are waking up to the fact that industries, like people, go only where they are honestly wanted and stay only where they are treated fairly.

We of Mississippi's oil and gas industry sincerely hope that the clarion call of "Reveille," which we hear today, never fades into "Taps" for industry in Mississippi.

Pass Christian News

by MRS. JOE ALLEN

EDWARD J. FOURNIER
On Saturday afternoon Edward J. Fournier, 69, passed away at his home on St. Louis street following a lingering illness.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday at 2:00 p. m. from the Riemann Funeral Home with interment in the Live Oak cemetery.

Serving as pallbearers were Jim Mullins of Gulfport, George McDonald of New Orleans, Dwight Watley, Paul Torgeson Sr., and Paul Fournier of Pass Christian, and Fred Holcomb of Long Beach.

Mr. Fournier, a life-long resident of Pass Christian, was a member of the St. Paul's Catholic Church. His father was Francis Fournier and his mother was Celestine Cuevas Fournier.

For many years Mr. Fournier was a commercial fisherman and a member of the Oysterman's Association. His skill in netting and uncanny wisdom of the ways of sea life and the likely trend of weather conditions along the Mississippi Sound will long be associated with his memory.

When ill health forced retirement from commercial fishing, Mr. Fournier established a grocery business; however, on his good days he spent much time at the water's edge netting for mullets, studying the sky and the water and storing rich philosophy in his mind.

In addition to his widow, Mrs. Blanche Fournier, he is also survived by his children, Edward Fournier Jr., and Ralph Fournier, of Pass Christian; Mrs. George McDonald and Mrs. H. Kappas of New Orleans; and Mrs. Fred Holcomb of Long Beach. He is also survived by his brothers, Alfred Fournier of New Orleans and Henry Fournier of Pass Christian, and a sister, Mrs. R. G. Deloit of Pass Christian. Mr. Fournier had ten grandchildren.

IRON LUNGS HEAVY AT SCHOOL

This year iron lungs were placed in the various grades in the Pass Christian Public School so that students might contribute to the "March of Dimes" polio fund campaign. Miss Naomi Saucier said that while she is not yet ready to announce the approximate amount to be contributed by school children, the miniature lungs are filling up satisfactorily and she feels the school will, as always, make a generous contribution.

In former years children from the lower grades have presented a Benefit Ball to bolster the polio fund; however, this year no ball for the younger children is on the program, due to many other activities scheduled during February.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE REMAINS STEADY

Although an above average number of cases of "flu," "virus X" and some childhood diseases as chicken pox and mumps have been reported, public school principal, W. S. Van Landingham, says the school has had good attendance with no more than a normal amount of absences from illness among the students. Other optimistic reports from the school include an improved lunchroom condition with more appetizing food and an increase in number of school lunches served.

While the school is gaining a few pupils, conditions are not crowded as in many other schools.

MINSTREL SHOW BENEFIT POLIO JANUARY 31

A Minstrel Show, sponsored by D. H. Holmes and composed of talent from the store's employees, will be presented in the High School auditorium in Pass Christian at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, January 31.

The cast, now in its fifth year of show business, has been classified as "professional" and has a solid booking through August. A. Lang, chairman of the Pass Christian "March of Dimes" drive with co-chairman, Mrs. Edith Lozes, announce admission prices for the minstrel as 50c for children and 75c for adults with $1.00 for reserved seats. "All funds taken in will be clear profit for the polio drive," explained Mrs. Lozes. "The talent is furnished free and even the transportation is paid by D. H. Holmes."

Among those to appear are Louis Mieg, director; Henry Flower, interactor; Loraine Wright Altaro, Musical Director, and as an added attraction the "Jacks and Jills" Rhythm Singers. Special thanks go to Hugh Evans and David McCutcheon for making this billing possible.

SCHOOLS SEE INAUGURATION ON HELWICK TELEVISION SETS

Eldridge Helwick placed television sets in the school auditoriums in Pass Christian in order that the entire student body might see the educational inauguration program. "Television Day" in the auditorium was welcomed and appreciated by the students, teachers and parents alike who have expressed thanks for Mr. Helwick's public spirited gesture. Mr. Helwick, always cooperative in civic matters, erected the TV sets in the schools as a sort of "passing out" cigar gesture. His newest son is now back home from the hospital and receiving a royal welcome in the Helwick home.

ELECTRIC SCORE BOARD ORDERED FOR SCHOOL

According to Superintendent of Schools, Norman Hall, an electric score board has been ordered and will soon become a part of the athletic equipment for the Pass High School.

Emphasis is being placed on physical education and all students of the seventh and eighth grades may, if they wish, participate in the physical education program offered under direction of Mr. Holloway.

Showers are being installed in the gymnasium and students have shown enthusiasm for basketball. The Sub-Regional Play-offs in basketball have been scheduled for February 5 - 7 with night games.

Parents are urged to attend the Monday afternoon, February 9 meeting with the Evaluation Board. Time of the meeting is set for four o'clock in the school auditorium. At this time the board will discuss the purpose and plans for the school's evaluation. The Board and faculty will be publicly introduced and affairs of the school discussed.

Mrs. Roy Favre arrived from North Carolina this week and is spending a while with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. the Marines.

ONE-ROOM SCHOOL RAPIDLY DISAPPEARING FROM SCENE

This one and two room school, like the mule drawn plow, is fast disappearing from the Mississippi scene as an increasing percentage of the State's 600,000 white and Negro school children march daily into new and modern high schools and elementary classrooms throughout the state.

More than 500 modern classrooms, many of them in up-to-date buildings, housing, auditoriums, gyms, cafeterias, libraries, laboratories, shops, clinics, music rooms and other facilities have been provided the children of the various counties of Mississippi since 1946.

Prior to that time, it was estimated that Mississippi had more than 3,000 small rural schools, most of which were one and two teacher Negro affairs in makeshift structures lacking even the bare essentials.

Thanks to more generous state and district appropriations and excellent planning by school officials and architects, approximately a third of these have been eliminated during the past six years.

School districts have spent between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000 for buildings since 1946, according to T. H. Taylor, Jr., director of the department of building and transportation for the Department of Education.

"New and modern buildings may be found in almost every county in the state, says Mr. Taylor."

The Legislature made its first appropriation for school building construction in 1946. Since that time, a total of $10,000,000 has been earmarked for this purpose. School districts, meantime, have provided approximately $30,000,000, making a total of approximately $40,000,000. The state and district funds. More than $8,000,000 has been spent by school districts which received no assistance from any source.

Despite the stepped-up tempo of school construction, a 1951 survey shows that 148,000 children were housed in unsatisfactory buildings, that there were 1,409 one-room schools in Mississippi, 960 two-room schools, and yet between 1500 and 2000 classrooms were not more than 50 per cent occupied.

The reason for this, researchers found, is the fact that rural population is decreasing in Mississippi while urban population is on the increase. "Therefore school buildings are still urgently needed in some places," Taylor says, "while in other places extreme caution must be used not to spend tax funds for buildings that might have empty classrooms."

At any rate, the taxpayer can be assured he's getting his money's worth. The cost of school buildings in Mississippi has probably been the lowest of any state in the nation. Many good buildings have been constructed at a cost ranging from $5.00 to $7.50 per square foot, with the best buildings ranging between $7.50 and $10.00, compared to a national average of between $11.00 and $14.00 per square foot. Many attributes much of the responsibility for this economical construction to the fine planning done by architects designing schools.

Many excellent buildings have been provided during the past year for children of both races, with facilities equal in all major instances.

Canton, for example, has a modern Negro elementary school building which cost $22,615. It contains six classrooms, and a combination auditorium-assembly room.

The East Yazoo Negro High School near Benton, built for approximately $60,000, contains 12 classrooms, office and toilets, a far cry from the one room shack with only outside facilities.

The Delta has made remarkable progress in providing facilities for its heavy Negro population. Jefferson county has several excellent schools at Slaughter, Morgan City and Greenwood, the latter with a half-million-dollar high school for Negroes which stacks up with the best of its kind in the nation.

Washington county also boasts some of the Negro schools at Hollandale, Lakeville, Leeland and Aynor. Greenville's new Negro Elementary and Negro High School, as up-to-date as a 1953 coin, will rate with the best school buildings to be found in the country.

Between 1500 and 2000 classrooms have been provided for Negro children, indicating more progress in this respect during the past four years than has been accomplished in the past half century.

You'll see the evidence of them at Clarinda, Vicksburg, Maben, Ackerman, Kosciusko, Forest, New Albany, Columbia, Macon, Bassfield, Hickory, Waynesboro, Monticello, Crystal Springs, Lambert, Hattiesburg, Laurel, Biloxi, Moss Point.

Markis, Pascagoula, Ocean

Spokane, Idaho, and in the Capital City, which recently has completed three fine structures for its Negro children.

Columbus and Natchez also have excellent school buildings under construction, and contract was recently awarded for a $600,000 Negro High School at Gulfport.

But emphasis on school construction is not entirely on Negro facilities. Excellent elementary schools have within the past four years been erected in more than 50 Mississippi communities, and a number of excellent consolidated schools for whites have been erected throughout the state's rural areas.

The shifting population from farm to the city is creating a serious problem for many of the state's communities.

Along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, war activities at Keesler Field and the Pascagoula shipyards have caused a tremendous increase in school population, a problem which is being alleviated partially by a Federal grant of more than $3,000,000.

Many other urban centers are suffering with similar growing pains, Jackson being one of the glowing examples.

But with continued planning, increased interest in providing needed facilities and financial assistance from state and district sources, Mississippi's youngsters may look forward to a school which offers them the best facilities to be found anywhere.

Another Big Year For Rural Telephones

Several thousand additional rural homes and business houses in Mississippi will receive telephones during 1953. A total of 102 rural telephone expansion projects are on our program for the year and work is progressing on many of them.

But new telephone subscribers are not the only ones who will benefit during the year by Southern Bell expansion in the State. Vast amounts of money are spent each year in Mississippi for poles, crossarms and other materials. That means business for many Mississippi industries and jobs and pay checks for the people who work in them.

Many more rural Mississippians will be thrilled by the ringing of a new telephone. Many more farmers will find how the telephone puts them in touch with supplies and services they need from town—and keeps them in touch with markets for their products.

Yes, your telephone company contributes in many ways to Mississippi progress and prosperity.

Many of our patrons have been inquiring relative to the status of the new building for the elementary grades in Bay St. Louis Central School. The delay in going forward with this building has been caused by the fact that the entire educational program for the state has been undergoing a study by a legislative committee appointed to make recommendations to a special session of the legislature to be called possibly during the month of February. At the suggestion of some of the members of this study group we have delayed the beginning of our building program to await the outcome of this report. The bills providing for the new set up in the educational department of our state regarding transportation, building construction, teachers salaries are now in the hands of school people and city officials for a study before a meeting of the State Legislature. This legislation recommended by the Recess Committee provides the assistance in building construction from the State level. While awaiting the action of this special session the Bay St. Louis authorities have secured an allocation of $12,000 from the State Building Commission to be applied to the construction of the elementary building. It should be possible within the next 60 days to make some definite plans toward proceeding with the construction of this building. All plans and specifications have been completed for several months.

Wednesday, January 14, Superintendent S. J. Ingram and J. Lamar Portenberry, high school principal, went to Jackson to attend a meeting of representatives of the Municipal Separate School District which were called in session to study some of the recommendations made by this Recess Study Group that involved the present status of Municipal Separate School District. Senator Gore of Quitman County was a speaker before this group and made some detailed explanations of the proposed legislation of the committee of which he is the executive secretary.

County Agent's Notes
By HOWARD SIMMONS

CORN

Corn is Mississippi's most important feed crop and is grown on more farms than any other one feed. Make your corn produce profitably. Plan to make at least 60 bushels to the acre.

Select well drained land. Do not plant on high, dry hillside. Remember, corn will grow on land that is too wet for high yields of cotton.

A good seedbed is a must for high corn yields.

Fertilizer recommendations for corn issued by the Agricultural Experiment Station for this area are: apply at planting time a complete fertilizer to give approximately 36 pounds each of nitrogen, potash and phosphate per acre. Side dress with 60 to 90 pounds of nitrogen per acre when the corn is knee-high. Specific fertilizer recommendations can be obtained through a soil test.

Recommended varieties for south Mississippi are: Dixie 18 (yellow) Coker 811 (white), Louisiana 521 (white).

Early hogging-off in Central South Mississippi: Dixie 17, Dixie 22, Dixie 38, and PAG 631.

Plant on time. The best planting dates are: South Mississippi last of March and early April.

Planting rates: Space plants 15 to 16" apart in 40 to 42 inch rows. This will require 9 to 14 pounds of seed per acre, or about one peck.

Cultivate to control weeds and grass. Stop cultivation when corn is about two and a half feet tall.

Harvest corn as soon as it matures. Treat against weevils and protect from rats.

HOME GARDENING

Have you planted your home garden yet? Now is a good time to do it. Here are some planting dates for central Mississippi, plant 7 to 10 days later in North Mississippi and 7 to 10 days earlier in the southern part of the state.

Asparagus (crowns) February 1 to March 15; carrots, January 15 to April 15; cabbage (plants) January 20 to March 15; Cauliflower (plants) February 15 to March 15; lettuce (head), January 15 to March 1; lettuce (leaf) January 1 to April 1; tender greens and mustard, January 15 to April 15; onions (plants or sets), January 1 to March 1.

Many Unseen Hands Help Guide Airline Pilots On Safe Flights In All Weather

Editor's Note: The following is another in a series of articles prepared by the State Aeronautics Commission designed to broaden the knowledge and interest of Mississippians in aviation. This month's article, "Safety Equipment in Flight," by Captain Eric Schweininger, veteran airline pilot, now Assistant to the General Sales Manager of Delta Airlines.

For the person who believes that his life is entirely in the hands of the pilot of the next scheduled airline plane he boards, it may prove comforting to him to know that many unseen hands and scientific aids are constantly on the alert to assure him a safe, pleasant journey.

True enough, the pilot's experience and skill in using the aids made available to him is an important factor in safety in flight. However, to fully appreciate the many steps which are taken to insure a safe flight, it is necessary to take a trip right here on paper.

Certified Equipment. Upon boarding the next plane you may rest assured that it has received an approved type certificate, indicating that it has been measured up to exacting requirements from the blue print stage to the present flight, including checks and double checks, flight tests and a thorough and extensive training program in the equipment by everyone from the pilot down through his crew to the mechanic who services it.

Hours of training by all personnel connected with the plane must be spent in frequent physical and written examinations by the pilot and crew must be taken to assure a healthy personnel thoroughly familiar with the equipment being used. It costs Delta Airlines approximately $4,000 to check out each pilot on the DC-6 alone.

With a tested plane, with airman and mechanics qualified to judge the airworthiness of the equipment and its operation, we are now ready to take off.

The crew assigned to your plane reports to Flight Control one hour before planned departure. This hour is used to review every detail of the scheduled flight, including weather enroute, airport conditions, winds aloft, operating status of radio aids and any other conditions bearing on the flight.

Flight Plan. Next a flight plan is worked out for each leg of the trip which includes the following information: altitude to be flown, temperature, magnetic course, wind direction and velocity, compass heading, air speed, ground speed, distance, time, fuel aboard, fuel consumed and fuel remaining. An original of this plan is kept by the crew, the duplicate given to the dispatcher.

Despite advance weather forecasts, weather stations along scheduled flights report local conditions hourly to the pilot by very high frequency radio communication. Thus the pilot receives weather reports prior to take-off, enroute, and upon landing.

Quite frequently on a long flight the plane may take off in bright visibility and after a short period encounter a cloud bank which obstructs the pilot's view of the ground, requiring that the plane be flown entirely by instruments. These flight instruments tell the pilot his altitude, speed, direction, rate of climb or descent and whether or not his wings are level.

Radio Aids. However, many other aids are present to assure his safe arrival at the destination airport. Radio is the present solution—not just one kind of radio aid, but many kinds. These include radio ranges, non-directional radio beacons, fan markers, dumbbells, fan markers, and many others.

Radio ranges are present to assure his safe arrival at the destination airport. Radio is the present solution—not just one kind of radio aid, but many kinds. These include radio ranges, non-directional radio beacons, fan markers, dumbbells, fan markers, and many others.

On present airplanes there is at least one radio receiver and frequently two receivers capable of receiving these different types of radio aids to navigation.

Radio ranges are to the pilot what highway markers are to the driver. By audible signals they tell the pilot he is "on the beam" or give a signal which tells him he is to the right or left of his course. Each station or range has an identification so that the pilot can readily determine the station to which he is tuned.

There also has been developed in the last three years a new type radio range known as the very high frequency omni range. This system, by operating on VHF, with the actual compass bearing to the station to which he is tuned. In addition to the range receiver, modern airplanes are equipped with radio compasses which are called automatic directional finders. By use of this equipment the pilot is able to tune a radio station and a pointer will automatically point to the transmitting station. By keeping the plane headed in the direction of the pointer, the pilot will fly directly over the transmitter tower, saving the pointer to swing 180 degrees which tells him the station is now directly astern of the plane.

The pilot may also pin point his position by taking a bearing on two or more radio stations.

Another valuable radio aid is the fan marker, located at strategic points along the airway. When the pilot flies over the fan marker a light appears on the instrument panel and he hears an identifying code which tells him his exact position.

With these helping hands to guide him along, the pilot now brings his plane to his destination field, which he finds is obscured by low hanging clouds.

Here another aid to flight takes over—the instrument landing system, which operates on the same principle as the radio range. After receiving clearance from air traffic control, the pilot tunes in this system. By radio signals and a visual indicator on the instrument panel, he is able to line the plane up with the runway, follow an indicated glide path which gives him a line to follow down to the end of the runway.

The system is designed to provide constant checks and double checks during the approach and landing to assure a safe, uneventful landing in weather which would have prevented such flight a few years ago.

At very busy airports, planes are arriving and departing at the rate of 50 or 30 per hour during inclement weather. What keeps these planes from colliding in air? Here is the answer.

The nation's airways, 14,000 identifying numbers and colors in much the same manner as U. S. highway routes. Planes flying on or crossing these routes must conform to certain regulations and procedures which are sometimes as involved as a novice driver trying to enter a super highway at a clover leaf intersection.

Whenever the pilot cannot see at least three miles horizontally below any cloud formation, the plane must be flown in accordance with a pre-established flight plan. The pilot is authorized by the controller to fly at a given altitude and cannot deviate unless he obtains approval before changing to another altitude.

Basically, all planes flying in opposite directions are separated vertically by 1,000 feet. General speaking all northbound and eastbound flights travel at odd altitudes, i.e., 3,000; 5,000; 7,000, etc., and south and west bound flights fly at even altitudes—4,000; 6,000; 8,000, etc.

Along each airway there are certain points or fixes where the pilot must advise the traffic controller the actual time and altitude at which he is arriving over the fix. In this way all planes flying on or over a controlled airway or area are plotted and controlled by the traffic controllers.

Upon reaching the airport for a landing, another phase of control takes over. It is called approach control. This system regulates landing and departing planes as to time, altitudes, directions or ascents and descents. Arriving planes are separated vertically by 1,000 feet over the airport and their pilots closely follow instructions by the approach controller so that each pilot knows exactly as what altitude he and the other planes are flying and in what sequence they will be cleared to land.

A good motorist about to take a long trip usually obtains maps to check the best routes, the main roads and the mileage. A good pilot does basically the same thing, but in a more comprehensive manner.

To aid in this planning, the airman pilot carries a complete set of world aeronautical charts, radio, direction finding charts, flight information manual, and an altimeter's guide.

Next time you board a scheduled airliner, remember that the pilot isn't flying by the seat of his pants, but is depending on a multitude of unseen hands and scientific aids.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER

W. F. Bond, Director of Public Relations
State Department of Public Welfare

The Federal Social Security Agency announces that in the United States as a whole for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952, there were approximately one half million fewer persons on the assistance payrolls than there were the year before. The main cause of this decrease was the fact that the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance payments had been increased to such an extent that many thousands of old people and dependent widows and children did not need to be carried further on the assistance payrolls. It was the plan of Congress when the Social Security Act was passed in 1935 that gradually the Old Age and Survivors Insurance benefits or Social Security as many would call it, would make the Old Age Assistance and other assistance programs less important and less necessary. Another reason for the decrease was, because of good times more old people and mothers of dependent children were able to get employment. In Mississippi during this same period of time, that is the 12 months ending June 30, 1952, 9,466 Old Age Assistance cases were dropped from the payrolls and only 7,974 were added. In Aid to Dependent Children about as many families were added to the payroll as were dropped. However, the net decrease for the year in these two programs combined was 1,461 cases. More cases would have been added but for the fact that 1) relatives were considered able to take care of many applicants' needs wholly or in part, 2) common law husbands were held responsible for the care of their children and, 3) the public assistance budget was low because of lack of funds.

Along each airway there are certain points or fixes where the pilot must advise the traffic controller the actual time and altitude at which he is arriving over the fix. In this way all planes flying on or over a controlled airway or area are plotted and controlled by the traffic controllers.

Upon reaching the airport for a landing, another phase of control takes over. It is called approach control. IRON LUNGS MEAN LIFE

A great many people in the United States are condemned to imprisonment each year although they have committed no crime. They are the iron-lung victims of polio.

Although at one time a patient in an iron lung faced almost certain permanent confinement, the prospect for persons stricken during past two years is considerably brighter, thanks to the March of Dimes.

Much progress in improving a patient's chances of liberation from breathing dependency is being made, according to a report by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Survey of Patients. A spot survey of America's respirator residents revealed that of 260 long-term patients being treated at five respirator centers supported by the March of Dimes, 81 have been freed during the past two years from tank type iron lungs to other less-confined breathing devices. An additional 52 have been released from all types of artificial respiration, while all but 14 patients enjoy prospects of at least liberation.

The survey also disclosed that the majority of respirator patients under 20 years of age were boys, while most of those between 20 and 30 were women. Medical authorities will hazard no explanation for this baffling statistic, the March of Dimes organization said.

Of every hundred polio patients living in respirators, 15 have been confined for three years or longer, 13 for two to three years, while 16 have been respirator patients for one to two years, the reports revealed.

16 Hours a Day in Tank. The average iron lung patient spends 16 hours each day in his iron lung. One out of four can rely partially upon a chest respirator or a rocking bed for a portion of the breathing assistance he needs.

While some of these cases, especially those who require 24-hour nursing service, cost the March of Dimes as much as $50 per day, the average is $18 every 24 hours. A respirator weighs 600 pounds and, without extras, costs $1,500.

Increasing the chances of escape for more iron lung victims is one of the prime targets of the March of Dimes drive now being conducted here and throughout the country.

State College has been with the company since 1935 and has been Division Engineer since 1942. H. F. Lowery, Engineer in the Gulfport Division, will succeed Mr. Weathersby as Division Engineer. Mr. Lowery has been with the company since 1936. He is also a graduate of Mississippi State College.

In announcing these changes Mr. Muths said, "We believe these changes, all promotions, will strengthen our company which is growing rapidly. Each of these men has a wide background of experience with the company and will make material contributions to the future growth of the company and the area we serve."
